

The "Death Positive Movement" Exists

Most people avoid talking about death, but there's a growing Death Positive Movement that encourages open conversations about mortality. Groups like Death Cafés host events worldwide where people gather just to talk about death, helping break the stigma.

Virtual Funerals & Digital Legacies Are the Future

With live-streamed funerals and memorial social media accounts, people are increasingly managing their digital afterlife. Some platforms allow users to schedule future messages to be sent after they pass away.

Death Doulas Are a Real Profession

Just like birth doulas support new mothers, death doulas guide individuals and families through the dying process. They provide emotional, spiritual, and practical end-of-life support. This profession is growing rapidly worldwide.

Green Burials Are Gaining Popularity

Traditional burials use toxic chemicals and non-biodegradable materials, but green burials allow bodies to decompose naturally. Some companies even offer biodegradable burial pods that turn remains into trees!
